GOOD ATTENDANCE AT MEETING HERE

Safety Committee of Indiana Division of B. & O. Southwestern Holds Regular Session.

DISCUSSION BY C. W. GORSAGE

Emphasizes Need of Employes Taking Advantage of Recommendations Made by Committee.

Station agents, switchmen and employes in other branches of the service of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad, members of the safety committee of the Indiana division, met at the assembly room at the division offices here today for their regular meeting. Every section of the division was represented, including the branch line from North Vernon to Louisville. Superintendent E. W. Sheer presided at both the morning and afternoon sessions.

C. W. Gorsage, a member of the general safety committee, attended the meeting here today and spoke on the need of overcoming careless practices to which the attention of the employes has been called by the committee. He said it sometimes takes a forcible example to convince the men of the merits of such recommendations.

Mr. Gorsage told of one employe working in the shops on the main line who thought he could not continue his labor by wearing goggles as had been recommended. The foreman cautioned the employe about the rule, and finally told him that the order was to be enforced and if he could not do his work behind goggles it would be necessary to place him in some department where he would not be required to wear them.

Finally the machinist consented to wear the goggles and two days later while he was working over a machine an end of an iron bolt flew up and broke one lens of the glasses. His eye was not injured. Several days later the other lens was broken in the same manner, but he was unhurt.

This machinist, Mr. Gorsage declared, then went to the foreman and asked for another pair of goggles. The foreman told him that he had ordered a new supply but had none that day. The machinist by experience had found the need of protecting his eyes and refused to work until goggles were provided. The example was cited by Mr. Gorsage to show how an employe's attitude may be suddenly changed on recommendations which are given for his own protection.

General Inspector Cronin spoke this afternoon. He discussed matters pertaining to the maintenance of ways department.

During the day an opportunity was offered for the members of the division committee to make suggestions and recommendations which would be particularly adapted to their own needs and in their own branches of service. The attendance at the meeting today was good and with few exceptions all the members were present.

PROTECTION OF FISH AND GAME TO BE ATTEMPTED

Organization of County Association to be Effect at Meeting at City Building Tonight.

Senator E. A. Norman, of Hope, is in the city and will speak at the meeting to be held tonight at the police court room in the city building for the purpose of organizing a County Fish and Game Protective Association. All persons interested in hunting and fishing and in protecting fish, game and song birds are asked to attend. Farmers, especially, are urged to attend.

E. C. Shireman, head of the fish and game department of Indianapolis, sent word that he was unable to attend on account of a previous engagement, but had spoken to George N. Mannfeld, of Indianapolis, an active member of the Marion county fish and game protective association. Mr. Mannfeld is expected to speak tonight. Gustav J. T. Meyer, prominent in the Indianapolis association, has written that he will be here. Mr. Meyer is an authority on game and fish. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM TO BLOOMINGTON

Local Basket Ball Tossers Leave for Scene of State Tournament Full of Confidence.

PLAY KOKOMO H. S. TOMORROW

Players and Coach Presented with Beautiful Monogram Sweaters by Athletic Association.

Accompanied by several loyal fans the high school basket ball squad in charge of Coach Hendershot, left this afternoon over the C. T. H. & S. E. for Bloomington, where tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock they will meet the Kokomo high school team in their first encounter of the state basket ball tournament. In the squad were Boyles and Sumner, forwards, Ackerman and Riley, guards, McCurdy center, nd Mackey and Pettus, substitutes. Every member of the team is in good shape, having done only enough practice work this week to keep from going stale, and they will go into the Kokomo game in condition to put up their best article of basket ball. Coach Hendershot would make no prediction as to the outcome of the game, but said the boys would go in determined to do their best. The members of the team are quietly confident, and say they will fight 'til the last trench.

The members of the team were presented this morning with beautiful purple sweaters, with the monogram S. H. S. in white, while Coach Hendershot was presented with a white sweater with a purple monogram. The sweaters were the gift of the athletic association. Coach Hendershot was in on the fact that the boys were to be given the sweaters, but when he was handed one for himself he was taken entirely by surprise. Mr. Hendershot is deservedly popular with the team and with the student body, and his work has had much to do with the success of this year's team.

The tournament games start at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, with Martinsville opposing Washington in the first game. There will be a game every hour thereafter, with the Seymour-Kokomo argument coming at 5 o'clock. While the Kokomo team will be weakened somewhat by the loss of one of their regular guards, who died on the opening day of the sectional tournament, the fact that they won out in spite of this handicap shows that they have a strong team, and a fast game is assured.

MAY PETITION FOR FEDERAL ENGINEER

Suggested that Advantage be Taken of Service Offered by Public Highway Department.

TO SUPERVISE LOCAL WORK

Expected that Several New Permanent Highways will be Constructed in This County Soon.

In view of the proposed permanent improvement of several highways in this county during the coming summer, it has been suggested that application be made for the services of a federal engineer to advise with the county officials and watch the progress of such work. Such inspectors are sent out by the Public Roads and Public Engineering section of the Department of Agriculture and are available to counties making such application in time.

The Hoosier Automobile Association which is enthusiastically supporting the good road movement in Indiana has suggested that counties contemplating the construction of permanent highways make application for a federal inspector. A member of the local automobile association said today that the club will probably take up the matter in the near future and ascertain if such a plan would be feasible.

Several petitions are pending before the county commissioners and before the Indiana supreme court. The latter body is expected to decide the cases appealed in a short time. If the opinion is favorable to the commissioners the work will proceed at once, it is understood

A form of an application distributed to counties interested in securing a federal engineer is as follows:

"We hereby make application for the assignment of a highway engineer to co-operate with us in the improvement of the public roads of this community, it being understood that the salary and the expense of the engineer assigned shall be paid by, and all necessary surveying instruments will be furnished by, the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering. In case any roads are constructed under the provision of the engineer assigned, we will furnish all labor, teams, tools, machinery, and materials necessary for the work of construction; and, in case a survey of a road is made, we will furnish all necessary assistants."

Engineers will be assigned, when available, to co-operate with road officials as follows:

To superintend the construction of a section of road of sufficient length to demonstrate proper methods of construction.

To make a survey of, and prepare plans and specifications for, improving a road of moderate length.

To make a study of the whole county or district for the purpose of planning a system of roads that will best serve the county or district, or for the purpose of making a report on the proper method of improving a designated system of roads and how best to finance the improvement.

To inspect any particular road and give advice relative to its improvement.

Blanks are provided to show when and why the engineer should be assigned and where he should report. The signatures of the officials in legal control of the roads must be appended to the petition.

With reference to the construction of new roads, the following questions are asked by the federal department:

"What length of road do you desire our engineer to supervise the construction of? What funds are available for constructing it? What kind of road do you desire to have built? (Earth, gravel, macadam, etc.) Are the materials for the road surfacing available locally or must they be shipped in? What kind of road building machinery will be available? Will you provide for the maintenance of the road, in accordance with the instructions of the engineer?"

DUTCH LINER TUBANTIA GOES DOWN IN NORTH SEA

Believed to Have Been Victim of German Mine—Captain, Rescued, Tells About Explosion.

By United Press.

Amsterdam, March 16—The Dutch liner Tubantia, carrying eighty-seven passengers and a crew of 300, sank today off North Hinder light ship, three hours after she was wrecked by an explosion.

Though the liner's captain said she might have been torpedoed it was reported at the company's office she might have struck a mine. The officers and crew were saved, the dispatches stated.

The captain who had been taken off by a rescue vessel, reported the vessel wrecked by a terrific explosion midship. He said he believed it possible the liner had been torpedoed. No large British or French liners traverse the North Sea and a submarine commander, encountering a large liner, would probably believe she was a neutral ship. This was pointed out in support of the theory that the liner struck a German mine.

The liner left Amsterdam yesterday for Buenos Aires. A large steam life boat left the hook of Holland in search for the liner. Several torpedo boats have put out from Flushing. The Tubantia displaced 13,911 tons and is owned by the Royal Dutch Lloyd. She was completed less than a year ago and was fitted up elaborately as the company's pride.

NEW PIPE ORGAN WILL BE USED IN RECITAL TONIGHT

Clarence H. Carsons, of Indianapolis, Assisted by Local Talent, in Program at First M. E. Church.

The new pipe organ which was recently installed in the auditorium of the First M. E. church will be used for the first time tonight in a recital by Clarence R. Carsons, of Indianapolis, assisted by local talent. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Carsons is a finished musician and is reputed to be one of the most talented organists in Indiana. The recital will afford a genuine treat for music lovers and will give the members and friends of the First M. E. congregation an excellent opportunity to hear the new instrument. The members of the church are proud of the organ which is capable of producing a variety of tones found only in large organs.

Local musicians tested the instrument before it was accepted by the committee and pronounced it far above the average.

The program for tonight follows:

CARRANZA'S MEN MOBILIZING

Messengers State That 3,000 Troops Order Gen. Calles Not to Visit Their Camp at Cabillona.

By United Press.

Douglass, Ariz., March 16—With Mexicans here and in Agua Prieta greatly excited over the American entry into Chihuahua, eight troops of the First cavalry were placed near the border line today facing Agua Prieta.

Carranza's soldiers mobilizing at Cabullona, eighteen miles south of Douglass, were reported to have informed General Calles of Sonora that he had sold out to the Americans.

Messengers stated that the 3,000 troops there had ordered Calles not to visit their camps and were actively entrenching and placing batteries northward.

San Antonio, Tex., March 16—With General Calles and his men opposite Douglass, Ariz., reported aggressively anti-American, army officials at Ft. Sam Houston today regarded the situation along the border as extremely acute.

In answer to appeals from border towns for protection it was reliably stated that the national guards of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico will soon be ordered to the border for patrol duty.

CHARLES CLOGSTON'S CASE BEFORE FEDERAL COURT

Terre Haute Editor Discharged by Judge Anderson on Contempt of Court Charges.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, March 16—Judge Anderson in federal court today discharged Charles Clogston, editor of the Terre Haute Post, who was jailed on contempt of court charges by Judge Eli Redman, prior to the big Terre Haute election conspiracy cases.

Judge Anderson ruled that Clogston had been put in jail without cause. Clogston was jailed when he published a statement charging that the county grand jury chosen to investigate the Vigo county election was "gang picked." He gained his release by habeas corpus proceedings in federal court.

FABRE LINER PATRIA IS FIRED ON BY SUBMARINE

Captain on Arrival at New York Tells of Attack Made on Vessel Off Coast of Africa.

By United Press.

New York, March 16—The Fabre liner Patria, flying the French flag and carrying 900 passengers narrowly escaped being sunk by a submarine off the coast of Africa March 1, Captain De Schello reported on his arrival here today.

A submarine attacked the Patria without warning, the commander said, and shot a torpedo at her. The missile missed the rudder by less than thirty feet, the captain said. The incident created a panic among the passengers, he stated. There were twenty Americans on board.

MARCH ACROSS THE DESERT

Second Column Under Col. Dodd Strikes Southward Along Foot Hills to Aid Mormon Colonists.

By United Press.

El Paso, Tex., March 16—After spending the night near Palomas Lake, nine miles south of the border, the main division of the American punitive expedition to exterminate Villa and his bandits was reported to be pushing forward on Villa's trial today.

Behind cavalry scouts, Col. Slocum's infantry, artillery and cavalry were marching this afternoon across the desert taking the exact trail followed by Villa after his raid on Columbus, New Mexico.

The trial was marked by wounded Villistas who, unable to acoempany the outlaw leader, had been abandoned to their fate.

A wagon train returned to Columbus bringing ten such Villistas caught in the net of scouts thrown ahead of the expedition.

The second column under Col. Dodd, which entered Mexico yesterday or early today, was striking southward along the foothills of the Sierre Madres on forced marches to the relief of Duolah, Mexico, where a colony of American Mormons is located.

AMERICANS IN SOUTHERN MEXICO FLEE TO BORDER

Fear of Safety of Colonists in Torreon Follows Message Sent to State Department.

By United Press.

Washington, March 16—With the greatest man hunt in history on in northern Mexico today fears of safety of Americans in the Southern Republic were felt by receipt of an official dispatch stating that the American colonists of Nacozari in northern Sonora and Torreon and in Chihuahuia are in flight towards the United States.

The state department received confirmation today that Consular Agent Williams and practically all Americans at Torreon would leave there. It was assumed they had already left.

BIG ARMY BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

20,000 Men to Be Added to the Regulars at Once.

Washington, March 16.—The senate has approved unanimously the joint resolution adopted by the house to bring the mobile army up to its full strength, which would add about 20,000 men to the present establishment, and bring the total forces to 120,000. The resolution now goes to the president for his approval.

A roll call on the resolution was ordered on request of Senator Gallinger, who explained that he asked it for the propose of "demonstrating that there is no division in the senate over measures to provide for protection of the country." There was not a dissenting vote on the roll call.

Sixty-nine senators were in the chamber and voted for the resolution. When the vote was announced Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, declared that "the nation and this congress stand as a single man in defense of American rights."

When word that the senate had adopted the resolution reached the war department, the adjutant general's office took steps to begin recruiting the additional men immediate.

There is no intention at present, it was made clear, to lower the physical requirements of recruits, and war department officials believe the full number of men will be available within a short time. More than 48,000 men who fully met these requirements, it was pointed out, were recruited last year without special effort being made to obtain them.

REVOKES FIVE LICENSES

Muncie, Ind., Pharmacists Charged With Illegally Selling Liquor.

Muncie, Ind., March 16.—By a decision of the state board of pharmacy, after hearing a number of local druggists charged with selling liquor illegally, five pharmacists here lost their licenses. One case was taken under advisement.

It is said that few of the druggists actually engaged in illegal sales of liquor were apprehended by the field men of the state board, and that there may be further developments.

Members of the board expressed their intention to wipe out "blind tiger" drug stores throughout the state, if possible. Carl Storer, a registered clerk, failed to answer the subpena, and his license was revoked by default.

VEGETABLE CALOMEL

Vegetable calomel, extract of the root of the old-fashioned may-apple plant, does not salivate. As a liver stimulator, it's great. It's a perfect substitute for ordinary calomel (mercury); in fact, it's better, because its action is gentle instead of severe and irritating—and it leaves no mean, disagreeable aftereffects. Physicians recognize this and prescribe may-apple root (podophyllin, they call it) daily.

Combined with four other standard, all-vegetable remedies, may-apple root may now be had at most any druggist's in convenient sugar-coated tablet form by asking for Sentanel Laxatives. If you forget the name, ask for the box that has the picture of the soldier on it.

These tablets are small, easy to take and are really wonderful little performers.

They quickly clean out the poisons that are causing you headache, constipation, sour stomach, biliousness, dizzy spells, bad breath and coated tongue.

They are mild. They never gripe. And they are a bowel tonic as well as a cleanser and liver regulator. A 10c box should last one several weeks. A Physician's trial package (4 doses) will be mailed you free if you write mentioning this advertisement. The Sentanel Remedies Co., 802 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

U. S. SOLEIERS ENTER MEXICO

Carranza Troops Join the American Forces.

GEN. PERSHING IN COMMAND

Additional Cavalry Will Join the Advance Guard In Hunting Down Villa —General Bell Will Direct Troops on Border.

El Paso, Tex., March 16.—Four thousand United States troops have crossed the border in Mexico, and are well on their way into the sister republic in a campaign to capture or kill Villa, bandit leader, who shot up Columbus, N. M.

Confirmation of the movement came from several points. Messengers arriving from the border first telephoned from Deming, N. M., later confirmation came from Columbus. It was also confirmed at Fort Bliss, recent headquarters of General Pershing, and at Fort Sam Houston, the headquarters of General Funston. General Pershing is in command of the expedition.

Advices received stated that the command of Carranza troops, under General Pablo Bertani, joined the American forces and would co-operate with them. It is now known that there was no resistance from the Mexican forces when the crossing was effected and it is also known that General Pershing has held conferences with General Bertani since reaching Columbus.

The advance guard of the American invading army is to establish a line of communication. It is stated, and the additional cavalry which is to make up the expedition that will do the principal work of hunting down Villa, will follow as it arrives at Columbus and its supply trains are fitted out.

Automobile trucks to carry goods and forage for the expedition are now en route here from Wisconsin. The first shipment has reached here. These will be necessary before the entire expedition can get under way. The troops leaving traveled with their old mule wagons. They will break the trail and establish a road so that when the additional cavalry arrives from interior points, the aviation squadron is set up and the motor transports reach the border, they will lose no time in following. The Thirteenth cavalry and companies E, F and G of the engineering corps, led the entry into Mexico, followed by the Sixth and Sixteenth infantry regiments, four mountain batteries of the Fourth field artillery, a battalion of the Twentieth infantry, and a field hospital corps.

The aviator corps has motor transportation and can move rapidly when its machines are set up and it is ready for work and can soon overtake the advance guard.

Tense Feeling Relieved.

The more or less tense feeling that has reigned recently on the border was further relieved by announcement in messages from Queretaro, headquarters of General Carranza, to the effect that the news of the "settlement by diplomatic means" of any possible difference between the United States and Mexico over the Columbus incident, had been received with the chiming of the cathedral bells, music and military bands and by the congregation of a large part of the population in the city.

Quiet was reported all along the border with the exception of Hachita, N. M., and Presidio, Texas. At Hachita a disturbance between some drunken Mexicans and Americans was reported as having occurred, following a raid by a small band of Mexicans over the border to drive off some cattle belonging to Americans. It is believed that a column of cavalry under command of Colonel H. J. Dodd, crossed the line from Hachita, simultaneously with General Pershing's entry at Columbus.

A detachment of troops from Fort Davis was sent to reinforce a detachment of the Thirteenth infantry on duty at Presidio. An attack on Presidio by Mexicans was said to be threatened. Santiago Loujas, a deputy sheriff of Presidio, is said to have been killed by Villa bandits a few miles from Ojinaga. The report states that the Carranza garrison in Ojinaga revolted and killed its commander, Col. Rojas, because he would not lead them across the river to attack the American troops and American citizens in Presidio.

To prevent the stirring of unfavorable sentiment among the Spanish reading residents of El Paso, the local police seized the forms and printed papers of the El Paso del Norta. The editor was arrested for printing inflammatory articles. This is the fourth Spanish paper suppressed by the police in a week.

Major General George Bell arrived from San Antonio to take command of the troops guarding El Paso. He declared he had no orders to go into Mexico, nor did he expect any, saying that he was instructed to take command of the border patrol at El Paso and preserve order.

El Paso, it was announced, will be the site of one of the training camps for recruits authorized by the measure passed in congress. It is understood that plans will be made immediately.

FRENCH TROOPS TAKE OFFENSIVE

Recover Trenches Captured by the Germans.

ARTILLERY QUIETS DOWN

Teuton Bombardment Becomes Less Violent at Several Points—Take Two French Positions and Lose One —German Losses Reported Heavy.

Paris, March 16.—The offensive in the battle for Verdun appears from the official statement to have passed into the hands of the French. Counter attacks made against the positions taken by the Germans on the Bethincourt-Cumieres front recovered certain of these trenches. The heights of Le Mort Homme did not change hands—it is still in possession of the French.

It is in the region to the east of the Meuse that the French seem to be taking the offensive. Violent activity is reported from the Vaux-Damloup front, where French skirmishing parties armed with hand grenades forced the fighting on the slopes to the east of the Vaux fort.

While the French were recovering part of the lost positions on the west bank of the river and assuming the lead in the fighting on the east bank, the Germans made no infantry attacks and even their artillery bombardment, which had been of great violence on the Bethincourt-Cumieres front, decreased appreciably in intensity. No attempt has been made by the Germans to make further progress to the west of the river.

The positions gained by the Germans, part of which have been re-occupied, are near Hill 265, immediately northwest of the height known as Le Mort Homme.

The artillery activity on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre has become intermittent.

General Pelain is quoted as having said: "Now I know where I stand. I am certain of final success."

This statement was made to M. Tauraine and M. Pate, members of the chamber of deputies, who have returned to Paris after inspecting the supply arrangements at Verdun. The two members expressed great satisfaction with all the arrangements for the defense.

The attack by which the Germans made their gains lasted for three and a half hours and was preceded by the usual heavy artillery preparation. The attack was begun at 4 o'clock and spread over the whole four-mile line from Bethincourt to the Cummieres crest.

Masses of Germans advanced from the Bois Des Corbeaux and smaller woods against Le Mort Homme and here the heaviest fighting occurred. To reach the slopes of the hill the Germans had to cross open ground in the face of French artillery, mitrailleuses and rifles. Heavy losses were sustained by the attacking parties, but they pressed on in spite of these and took two positions.

It is presumed that the crown prince planned to break through the French lines between Bethincourt and Le Mort Homme in order to begin an enveloping movement against the French at Chattancourt, to the southeast.

WAR SPIRIT STRIKES SPAIN

Promises Made by Kaiser Arouses Demands For Intervention.

New York, March 16.—Percival Gassett, four years American consul at Malaga, Spain, brought disquieting reports of conditions in Spain when he arrived on the liner Manuel Calvo, from Cadiz and Barcelona.

"The war spirit has finally struck Spain," he said. "On every side one hears demands for intervention on the side of Germany. Germany is regarded as Spain's friend, partly because the Teutons are fighting Spain's hereditary enemies, but mostly because it is understood in diplomatic circles that the kaiser has made certain promises to King Alfonso through the pope. The feeling against Americans is strong."

Strangely enough on the same ship were Senors Joaquin Cortigo and Manuel Diaz, lieutenants in the royal navy, who said they were members of a commission recently appointed by the king to purchase war supplies.

Arrested on Smuggling Charge.

Seattle, Wash., March 16.—Five white men, seventeen Chinese and one Japanese were arrested here, accused of being the principals in an organized gang of smugglers charged with bringing into the United States opium valued at $1,080,000, and Chinese laborers who, it is alleged, paid the gang $280,000.

REOPEN PANAMA CANAL APRIL 15

Colonel Harding, Acting Governor Makes Prediction.

GREAT FEAT ACCOMPLISHED

Reopening Regarded as Second Only to the Construction of the Canal From an Engineering Point of View —Better Facilities Than Before.

Washington, March 16.—An official prediction that the Panama canal will be reopened by April 15 for the passage of deep draft vessels is announced by the war department.

Conditions in Gailliard cut, scene of principal earth movement which blocked the waterway last fall, are regarded as justifying the forecast. Col. Harding, acting governor of the canal zone, telegraphed the war department as follows:

"Conditions in Galliard cut justify predictions that the canal will be available for ships of thirty-foot draft on April 15, subject to probable temporary delays thereafter to meet exigencies of dredging fleet in completing canal to full width and depth and in removing shoals that may possibly develop."

Earth movements in the canal began in September and were at first regarded as comparatively unimportant. It had been intended to send the Atlantic fleet through to participate in the formal opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, but the plan had to be abandoned.

Major General Goethals, governor of the canal, was on leave in the United States when the canal was blocked. He had asked to be retired under the act of congress granting him that privilege, believing his work done.

In October he hastened back to the canal zone after advising President Wilson that he did not wish any action taken on his resignation until the extent of the slides was determined. When he found that a huge new task had been set him by nature he promptly withdrew the resignation.

Reopening of the great waterway is regarded as an engineering feat second only to the construction of the canal. Millions of tons of rock and earth have been torn out of the collapsed excavation.

In the meantime the construction work at the terminals and about the locks has proceeded without pause. When the canal is reopened it will have advanced in equipment far beyond the point it had reached when the slides began. Facilities for quick handling of ships will be much better than they were at that time, and the great project closer to final completion in all details.

HINSHAW TRIAL MOVES SLOW

Judge Rebukes Jurors For Tardiness at Hearing.

Noblesville, Ind., March 16.—Efforts to select a jury to try Edwin M. Hinshaw, former state bank examiner and vice president of the defunct Farmers and Merchants' bank at Cicero, consumed most of the day. Hinshaw is charged with conspiring to defraud the depositors.

Judge Sparks of Rushville, who is presiding, started off the proceedings in spicy fashion by delivering a sharp rebuke to the members of the jury who have been tentatively passed. The tardiness of most of the jurors delayed the proceedings several minutes and the judge intimated that if the jurors could not come into court on time they would not be permitted to go home at night.

J. Luther Hinshaw, brother of the defendant, with whom he was jointly indicted, but who will be tried separately, is an interested spectator in the court room.

CLARK PICKS THE THREE BEST TEAMS

Wabash Given Two Places And Purdue One on First All State Basketball Quintet.

NOTRE DAME AND I. U. GET ONE

Franklin Secures One Place on Second Team—Indiana Has Three on Third.

Indianapolis, March 16—Indiana has just passed through the most successful basketball season in its history in point of class and attendance, according to Heze Clark, former Indiana football star and sport writer who today picked an all-state college basketball team for the Indiana Times.

Wabash college is honored with two places on Clark's first team. Purdue, Notre Dame, and Indiana each get one place. Franklin is the only secondary college aside from Wabash that places in the second team and Butler and Indiana Dental are the only secondary schools placing on the third team.

The selection follows:

Position: First Team
Forward—Brockenbrough, Purdue.
Forward—Fitzgerald, Notre Dame.
Center—Stonebraker, Wabash.
Guard—Bacon, Wabash.
Guard—Buschman, Indiana.

Position: Second Team
Forward—Coffing, Wabash.
Forward—Lowery, Franklin.
Center—Nash, Indiana.
Guard—Stinchfield, Purdue.
Guard—Cauldwell, Wabash.

Position: Third Team.
Forward—Loveron, Indiana Dental.
Forward—Maxwell, Indiana.
Center—Myers, Notre Dame.
Guard—Mullett, Indiana.
Guard—Sussman, Butler.

Clark who coached the Dental five during the past season, sets a new precedent for basketball coaches who pick all state teams. Instead of encumbering the records with his own players at the ratio of about three to one, Clark allows his own team but one place out of a total of fifteen, and that man is on the third team.

Clark says in part:

"In the most successful basketball season from the standpoint of attendance and the class of basketball played by college teams, the season of 1915-1916 came to a close Saturday when Indiana University defeated Purdue 39 to 29. By winning that game Indiana mixed the rating of the teams up to such an extent that now Wabash, Purdue, and Indiana all have a just and good claim to the championship of the college teams of the state. Indiana won one and lost one with Purdue. The Wabash team twice defeated Indiana. However, Wabash lost to Purdue in the only game played between the Little Giants and the Boiler Makers. Even if these three teams all claim the state honors it would be impossible to say one team had a better claim than the other.

"Of the other college aggregation of the state Franklin college seemed to be by far the strongest until an unexpected thing happened. Earlham, a team that had been playing losing basketball, defeated Franklin. To be sure Franklin returned the compliment two weeks later and defeated Earlham. However, it must be remembered that DePauw, another team that had lost many games, defeated Franklin at Greencastle. It might be mentioned that Franklin had formerly piled up a one-sided score against DePauw. Central Normal twice defeated Rose Poly, won from the Winona Aggies, defeated the Indiana State Normal and played better basketball than ever before. The Central Normal won one and lost one with the Indiana Dental college quintette. The Butler team showed strong and twice defeated the Dentals, but lost one game to the Tooth Pullers. Butler defeated Indiana State Normal, DePauw, Earlham (two games), won one and lost one with Rose Poly, but was defeated twice by Franklin, and twice by Wabash. Hanover lost to Rose Poly and Franklin. Wabash lost but one game to a Hoosier team—that to Purdue early in the season. Wabash defeated Butler twice, Indiana twice, Notre Dame twice, Earlham twice, Central Normal, Franklin, and Indiana Dental College. The Indiana Dental college during the last season has become a team that must be reckoned with. The Dentals played 18 games and won 12. The defeated Earlham, Central Normal, Rose Poly, Indiana State Normal, St. Joseph College two games, won one out of three with Butler.

UNITED STATES ENTERING ON ERA OF HIGH PRICES

Clothing, Shoes, Varnishes, Medicines and Even Pocketbooks Soaring in Price.

New York, March 16—The United States is entering upon what is believed to be an era of high prices. The ultimate consumer, as usual, is the victim. War conditions and a so-called monopoly of markets are blamed for the increase in the prices of commodities. Retail prices began soaring recently and they are still ascending at such a rate that no one seems able to guess when the high level will be reached.

Shoes, clothing, stationery, hair brushes, pocketbooks, painted articles of all kinds, photographic supplies, varnishes, medicines—nearly everything that a man uses every day—have increased from 10 to 30 per cent in price, according to experts.

The rise in the prices of raw materials needed for military uses or customarily imported from Germany and Austria that occurred almost simultaneously with the beginning of the war was soon accompanied by a rise in the prices of those domestic products which were substituted for articles withdrawn from the market because of the war.

These increases affected only the manufacturers and wholesaler at first, for retailers had supplied themselves with stocks at prices that prevailed before the war. When these stocks were used up and had to be replenished, the retailer felt the price advance.

As prices have been rising steadily for months, with unprecedented acceleration in the last few weeks, the prediction was made generally today that the cost to the consumer of goods this spring would make those purchased last winter look cheap.

Probably the most important rise of all has been in the price of paper. For consumers of large quantities of paper conditions have been serious for some time and recently even the smallest purchaser had had to pay his share in the general price advance.

With the price of aniline colors raised from 20 cents a pound before the war to $20 a pound when last quoted, tinted papers have become very expensive and in some cases unprocurable. Leather prices are away up. The prices of all shoes will be materially higher this spring than ever before.

ASSASSINATION OF CARRANZA REPORTED

Many Significant Rumors of Political Upheaval.

Washington, March 16.—A report has reached here that General Carranza has been assassinated. The report cannot be confirmed in any official quarter.

For a week or more seemingly significant rumors of further upheavals in Mexico politics have been received despite the rigors of the censorship—rumors which might possibly have presaged the deposition or even the assassination of the first chief, Venustiano Carranza.

Five days ago it was announced that General Pablo Gonzales, military governor of Mexico City, had gone hastily to Quertaro, Carranza's personal headquarters for a conference with the acting president. Subsequently it was announced that Gen. Obregon, whose star has been rising steadily, had been made minister of war, and that General Aguilar had been appointed minister of foreign affairs. Then came an entirely unsupported rumor that Carranza actually had been deposed by his powerful chiefs, of whom Obregon is recognized to be the most forceful and the most ambitious.

General Guiterrez, commander of Carranza troops in northern Mexico, came to the border and conferred with General Garcia in charge at Juarez, then he hurried south again.

SHIVELY FUNERAL SATURDAY

No Pomp Will Mark Services of Late Senator.

Washington, March 16.—No ostentation or pomp will mark the funeral of Senator Benjamin F. Shively of Indiana, who died at Providence hospital here.

Mrs. Shively has decided that as, as the senator lived, so shall he be buried. Consequently, there will be only one funeral service, and that at the Shively home at South Bend at 2 o'clock Saturday. No service will be held in Washington and the body will not lie in state at the state house in Indianapolis, as had been requested by Governor Ralston of Indiana.

The funeral will be private and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. C. A. Lippincott, minister of the Presbyterian church at South Bend, of which Mrs. Shively is a member. The body will lie in Washington at the family home, 1312 Twenty-first street, until Thursday evening at 6:15, when, accompanied by a guard of honor from the senate and the house the body will be taken to South Bend.

The funeral train will be run as a special, leaving here as a second section to the St. Louisian at 6:15 Thursday evening. It will be due to arrive in South Bend at 1 p. m., Friday.

BOY CRUSHED BY AN AUTO

Anderson Lad Run Down When on Way Home From School.

Anderson, Ind., March 16.—Hubert Cowles, age six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cowles of Anderson, was instantly killed when he was run over by an automobile, when on his way home from school. School had just dismissed at the Hazelwood building, and the Cowles lad and three companions were crossing the avenue, about a square from the school building, when an automobile carrying five men overtook the boy before he could get out of the way. The boy's head was crushed and the body was carried about fifty feet.

The accident happened half a square from the boy's home. Witnesses of the accident said the license number of the automobile was 566, of the Indiana series of 1916.

STRIKER HIT BY BULLET

Chicago, March 16.—Bloodshed marked the strike of employes at the Corn Products Refining company's plant in Argo.

George Mademos, a striker, was shot and seriously wounded either, it is said, by a company watchman or by one of the 150 private detectives guarding the plant. A fusillade of revolver shots was fired by both strike pickets and guards when an automobile truck laden with food supplies was driven into the company's yard.

SIGNIFICANT ACTIVITY.

The activity among Republicans for nominations for offices to be filled at the November election is significant. It shows the confidence they have in a Republican victory. Leaders are firm in their belief that the political complexion of the state and nation will be changed after the voters have spoken at the polls next fall. The friendly contests among prospective candidates for nominations are a benefit to the party. These candidates have conferred with the people before permitting their names to go before the public and they are familiar with the desires and wishes of the majority. They know that the chance of Republican victory was never better and it is only natural that they should desire to become the party's representatives on the ballot.

The Republican party is the greatest political organigation in the government of the United States. In selecting the candidates, therefore, the welfare of the party should be recognized as the first consideration by all members and friends. Contests for nominations should be made in the most friendly spirit. All aspirants for office have the same opportunity to make the race for the nominations. The bars are laid down and the contest becomes a free for all, with the majority empowered to name its own choice. When this majority has spoken the defeated candidates should abide by the decision. There is no cause for personal enemity to arise among any of the contestants. The choice of one candidate at a particular times does not necessarily mean that the others will not be favored later. The great mass of Republican voters recognize the best interests of the party before the personal ambitions of any candidate. The selection of a leader is made in view of the existing conditions. A year, two years or three years may bring about such a radical change that the choice would be entirely different.

Discussing editorially the freedom given aspirants to enter any race and referring specifically to the Republican contest for U. S. senator, the Indianapolis Star has the following wholesome comment:

"The right way to look at this question is to divest the mind wholly of the animosities on each side and recognize the plain facts of the situation. Otherwise the rent between the New and the Watson supporters may be widened and deepened, instead of composed.

"Mr. Watson made what is generally felt to be a vigorous and almost single-handed fight for the nomination for Senator Kern's place. He failed of a plurality, however, and apparently he stood to see his strength in the state convention steadily disintegrate.

"There is no escape from the fact that Mr. Watson's candidacy was directed specifically toward the long term; and yet there is nothing to prevent or rule out his now being a candidate for the short term suddenly put in the hands of all the state conventions by Senator Shively's death.

"There is no just ground for the resentment against Mr. Watson's entrance into this contest, precisely as there would be no just basis for Mr. Watson or his friends to object to entrance into the race by Mr. Hays or Judge Myers or any one else. It is a new deal for a new prize.

"Much depends in this matter upon the spirit shown on all hands as to whether this controversy is to degenerate into so bitter a fight as to imperil Republican success and to prevent a fair test of the issues at stake before the voters in November. Men who place patriotism above personal animosities should beware of being drawn into the vindictive mood by extreme partisans of the opposing camps."

A FAITHFUL CHAIRMAN.

Judge John M. Lewis, of this city, retires from the Republican chairmanship of the Fourth congressional district after two terms of earnest work for the party. He gave up the office because of his candidacy before the Republican state convention for the nomination for lieutenant-governor. Judge Lewis will get the undivided support of the delegates from this district at the convention. His work as district chairman has been unceasing. He traveled into every part of the district and carefully outlined the program to be followed. His suggestions were readily approved by the county chairmen and workers.

Judge Lewis is receiving state wide encouragement in his race for the nomination for lieutenant-governor. His friends and admirers throughout the state voluntarily rallied to his support as soon as his official announcement was made. Few men in Indiana enjoy a wider state acquaintance than Judge Lewis. As a state officer of the Knights of Pythias and finally as grand chancellor of Indiana he visited every city and town of any size and at the meetings formed numerous friendships. He is one of the leading attorneys of the Jackson county bar. He served as judge of the Scott-Jackson judicial district and since his retirement from the bench has been actively engaged in the practice of law. His training has been such that he is equipped to preside over the higher branch of the Indiana legislature.

TWO POLICEMEN AND BOY SCOUTS BESTED BY WOMAN

Militiamen Finally Called and After Struggle Lone Female is Jailed, Said One Mr. King.

"She threw bricks at me and finally I was taken away. Two policemen tried to arrest her and she whipped them. Then the Boy Scouts came and she put them to flight. Finally the militia was called out and after she beat up several of the company she was put in jail. The sheriff was mighty kind to me and tried to protect me."

The above was the story that was told in Mayor Ross' court this morning by a stranger who said his name was King.

"Where did all this happen?" asked the court.

"Why, right here in Seymour. The woman is in jail now," King replied.

The court officials looked around at each other amazed. "Better call Dr. M. F. Gerrish," suggested one. Dr. Gerrish was called and proceeded to test the man's mentality. He answered all sorts of questions. He said he was a soldier in the Spanish-American war and told in detail about several engagements. He said he was a pressman and had been working at Columbus. He was seeking work here, he stated. He carried a bunch of recommendations and references from publishers for whom he had worked.

King said he had to drink a little to "break the monotony of his work." He admitted that he had been drinking at Columbus, and later half way admitted that the powerful woman who put two policemen, a company of boy scouts and a regiment of militia to flight might have lived in Columbus. Local officers say he might have seen the boy scouts at Columbus drilling and his imagination furnished the rest of the story.

"This didn't happen in Seymour," said Dr. Gerrish.

"Well maybe it didn't," said King. "You call up the hospital and ask them how many faces they dressed last night and then I'll tell you if it did." King apparently had been drinking heavily. He talked rationally on every other subject except the fight between the woman and the police. He thought she was after him because he had given away a secret password, and declared she threw bricks at him while he was in jail.

After a consultation, the officers decided to send King to Scottsburg, and the township trustee was asked to supply money for the ticket. King was given his dinner at the police station. He said he had not had anything to eat since yesterday noon.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL BRIDGES PREPARES DATA ON GUARDS

Looks Over Requirements Needed for Eqiupment if State Militia Should be Called.

Should the Indiana National Guard be called into service on account of border conditions at the Rio Grande, there would be busy times ahead in equipping the guard to war strength and Adjt. Gen. Bridges was busy yesterday preparing data as to just what would be required.

The requirements of horses and animals are of particular interest, as the War Department would expect these animals to be obtained throughout the state, just as the guards of other states would depend on their own immediate territory for these supplies. The Indiana guard, if called into service, doubtless will be on a basis of three regiments of infantry, one regiment of field artillery, one company of engineers, one signal company, two ambulance companies and one field hospital company. In all it would take 1,500 animals to equip this force, as the dismounted troops require numerous mules for supply and commissary wagons.

For the artillery alone there would be required 684 horses, besides twelve heavy draft horses. The three regiments of infantry would require 132 wheel mules, 132 lead mules and eighteen riding mules. For the field artillery there would have to be thirty-four wheel mules, thirty-four lead mules and three riding mules. The engineers would require twenty-six mules, the signal company four mules, the two ambulance companies, 120 mules and the field hospital thirty-three mules. The machine gun companies would require forty-eight mules. There would also be required 557 riding horses.

Adgt. Gen. Bridges believes Indiana could supply quickly the number of animals needed. These animals would be delivered at Indianapolis, Lafayette, Frankfort and probably one or two other towns.

There is a rather good type of horses in Indiana and they would be well adapted for the purposes of this force. The artillery horses would run from 1,075 to 1,300 pounds in weight and 15 hands 2 inches to 16 hands high, while the horses for those who are mounted would run from 950 to 1,100 pounds. The cavalry type of horses would be used for mounted men and it would be desirable to get horses that are short coupled, with clean legs and slanting shoulders, while the artillery horses would require well-developed shoulders suitable for steel collars. The artillery horses, however, must be combination animals and suitable for draft as well as for riding.

Make Your Savings Earn Money

The Cooperative Building and Loan Association will start Series L Monday, April 3, giving citizens of Seymour another opportunity to place their savings each week where the money will earn steady and sure dividends.

Last year the Cooperative earned over 7 per cent. for its stockholders, and every member, whether a borrower or investor shared in the earnings just in proportion to the amount of stock held.

By saving 25 cents per week for a little over six years the payments made and the earnings amount to $100.00 when the stock matures. If for any reason it is impossible to continue the payments, the stock may be withdrawn at any time and the stockholder receives all the earnings up to the time of withdrawal.

There is no safer investment. There is no better plan to have your weekly savings earn money for you. There is no easier way to secure a home or accumulate a sum of money, than by the building and loan plan.

See the Secretary Thos. J. Clark and take stock in the new Series L.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING EMPHASIZED IN ADDRESS

H. J. Kenner, Secretary of Associated Advertising Clubs, Speaks to Retail Convention.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, March 16—Truth in advertising as a business asset was advocated by H. J. Kenner, secretary of the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, in a speech today before the Indiana Retail Association convention.

"There is no such thing in print as a White lie. All printed lies are black lies. The public today expects the advertiser to insure the dependability of the advertising. The responsibility is not so much upon the publisher or the advertising agent, though they too, have a tremendous moral responsibility. The advertiser is coming to recognize his advertising as an investment in public confidence.

There are coming to see that as General Stanley Lee has said, 'Success is the science of being believed.'

"Ninety per cent of business today is honest, and the other ten per cent is working a tremendous injury to the other. Business men want a Federal law broad enough in its prohibitions to insure virtual accuracy and exact truthfulness in all advertising."

Col. S. S. Stockdell, who recently underwent an operation at the Schneck Memorial Hospital, is gradually improving and encouragement is given that he will be able to leave the hospital within a few weeks. He is gaining strength and is recovering from the effects of the operation. His left arm was amputated above the elbow as the result of blood poison which resulted after the bone was fractured in a fall.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT TEACHERS' LICENSES

When Applicant Takes Test on All Subjects on Re-trial He Waives Right to Remove Failures.

Additional information concerning examinations for teachers' license is contained in a letter sent by Chrles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction to County Superintendent J. E. Payne.

The circular quotes a ruling of the state board of education:

"Resolved, That an applicant for teacher's license who may have failed on one or two subjects may have the privilege of removing those failures at the next examination but if applicant elects to take all the subjects of the second examination, he thereby waives the right to remove failures of previous examinations."

Until recently, if a teacher failed in one branch of the examination, the failure was final for that examination. Lately a ruling made it possible to remove failures at a subsequent examination.

Pierce Mitchell, West Oak street, is without a doubt one of the happiest boys in Seymour today. He was declared the winner in the contest which the Interstate Public Service Co. has been conducting the past week. A prize of $10 was promised the boy bringing in the largest list of houses which were not wired by electricity, and when Pierce presented his list this morning he had 723 names on his book and he was given a shining ten dollar gold piece. Nearly thirty boys were in the contest, which was arranged by the Interstate company to aid them in their house wiring campaign during "Wire Your House Month," March 15 to April 15. Miss Julia Kerkhoff, local manager of the company, gave a party for all of the boys in the contest last week.

Proper Food for Young Children

Simple bills of fare, helpful recipes, and practical directions for the preparation of foods for children between three and six years of age are contained in a bulletin just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bulletin, which was written by Caroline L. Hunt, under the direction of Dr. C. F. Langworthy, chief of the office of home economics, is easy to understand and should be helpful to mothers who are trying so to care for their children that they will grow up into stalwart and efficient men and women.

The author has carefully avoided the use of all technical dietary terms or systems of grouping and has so classified foods that any mother can meet the following definition of a satisfactory diet for a little child:

"A little child 3 to 6 years of age who is carefully fed in accordance with his bodily needs (as these are now understood) receives every day at least one food from each of the following groups:

1. Milk and dishes made chiefly of milk (most important of the group as regards children's diet); meat, fish, poultry, eggs and meat substitutes.
2. Bread and other cereal foods.
3. Butter and other wholesome fats.
4. Vegetables and fruits.
5. Simple sweets."

The relation of food to the condition of the bowels is also an important matter. Grains, particularly those containing the outer or branny layers or coats, are laxative; so, too, are such mildly acid fruits as apples, oranges and grapefruit. So far, therefore, as the important matter of preventing constipation is concerned, coarse grains and mildly acid fruits serve the same purpose. When fruits are to be obtained in abundance, the kind of cereal served is not of great importance. When they are not, the coarser cereals should be used.

The basis of a child's diet should be clean whole milk—at least a quart a day. Such milk, in addition to water contains about half a cupful of the very best food substances—butterfat, milk, sugar, lime and other materials needed by the child to make muscle, bones and teeth. In addition milk contains a substance thought to promote growth by helping the body make good use of other foods. Where good whole milk is not obtainable, clean, fresh skim milk supplies these substances with the exception of the butterfat, and is, of course, preferable to dirty or questionable whole milk. Milk, however, contains very little iron and therefore spinach and other green vegetables and egg yolks, which are rich in iron combine well with milk.

The child should drink the milk with the chill taken off, or should consume his full quart a day with cereals and in milk toast, cocoa, milk soups and stews, in cereal puddings, custards, junkets, or simple ice creams. Milk stews may be made with vegetables or fish, or to vary the diet these things can be combined with cream sauce and served on milk toast. The bulletin therefore gives a large number of recipes for the preparation of various milk dishes which will help children consume the requisite amount of milk without growing tired of this valuable food. Those for milk soups will be found particularly useful, as they give the mother an easy means of preparing many vegetables which are essentials in the child's diet.

Favorite Recipes

MUFFINS.

Two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of molasses, one egg and one cup of sweet milk.

Mix the dry ingredients and sieve twice, then work in the butter with the tips of the fingers. Separate the egg and beat the yolk into the milk, which has been added to the molasses. Mix with the dry ingredients and stir until smooth. Fold in the beaten white of the egg and pour into hot, well-greased muffin tins. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Graham, rye, cornmeal or whole wheat muffin are made in the same way by mixing with the wheat flour one-fourth to one-half the quantity of graham, rye, cornmeal or whole wheat.

—o—

BEEF EN CASSEROLE.

Two and a half pounds of round steak, two tablespoonfuls of beef drippings, one small carrot cut in dice, one tablespoonful of flour, one small onion sliced, salt, pepper and paprika to taste, one cupful of strained tomatoes and one bay leaf.

Salt and pepper the meat and sprinkle in the flour. Heat the drippings in a frying pan and brown the meat in it on all sides. Place in the casserole, add the other ingredients, cover and let simmer at a low temperature until tender, keeping the casserole well covered so as not to allow the team and juices to escape. Serve hot with mashed or baked potatoes.

—o—

PINEAPPLE SALAD DRESSING.

The following dressing is very fine for fruit salads: One-half cupful of pineapple juice from a can of pineapple, one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of tarragon vinegar, one-half cupful of sweet milk, yolks of six eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of paprika, one tablespoonful of cornstarch and a pinch of sugar.

Mix the dry ingredients, place in a double bailer and blend with the butter until the flour has been well-cooked, then add the pineapple juice and vinegar. Beat the eggs with the milk and add to the above mixture and cook until thick. Stir constantly or the dressing will be lumpy.

—o—

CARAMEL PUDDING.

One pint of milk, three-fourths cupful of granulated sugar, one level tablespoonful of cornstarch and the yolks of two eggs. Brown the sugar in a skillet, add the milk which has first been heated. The sugar will boil up like hard taffy, then let it cook slowly until it dissolves. Mix the cornstarch and egg yolks togehter with a little cold milk, then add to the milk and sugar. Cook until it thickens and the cornstarch has been thoroughly cooked. Strain through a wire strainer into a dish to cool and fold in the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Serve with whipped cream.

—o—

APPLE CAKE.

Put into a basin half an ounce of grated unsweetened chocolate, two cupfuls of brown flour, a handful of currants and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Make a cupful of sauce from sour apples and stir into it a large teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda; add three parts of a cup of sugar an half a cup of sour milk. Then pour in the other mixture, beat weil and bake in a moderate oven for nearly an hour.

—o—

DROP SPICE COOKIES.

Two cupfuls of light brown sugar, three-fourths cupful of butter, three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sour cream, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one and a half cupfuls of raisins and currants. Add cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice to suit the taste. Stir in enough flour for the dough to drop from a spoon. Drop in small spoonfuls on to well greased tins, leaving plenty of space between for the cakes to spread.

—o—

CAULIFLOWER SOUP.

Cook caulflower in beef stock, saving the stock in which it has been cooked. Press through fine sieve, rejecting all the stems and course pieces. To the puree of cauliflower add the stock, season and, just before sending to the table, add a pint of cream for each four people, whipping the cream and turning it into the soup just before it is served.

—o—

A PALATABLE DRINK.

A nourishing, palatable drink can be procured by beating together half a glass of sour milk with the same quantity of fresh. Add a pinch of salt while beating. Put on the top a fine coating of powdered almond and a little nutmeg. This, with a few wheaten biscuits, is sufficient for a light meal and is well worth trying.

—o—

COOKIES.

Two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of butter, one small cupful of water or sweet milk, two eggs, one-half grated nutmeg, five cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Roll thin on a well-floured board and bake in a quick oven.

—o—

CRISPS.

One cup of sugar creamed with one cup of butter. Add one egg, one-half teaspoon soda, three tablespoonfuls of sweet milk and enough flour to make a dough that will roll out as thin as a knife blade. Flavor with vanilla. Cut with a small cookie cutter and bake in a quick oven.

—o—

BROWNED FLOUR FOR GRAVIES

Spread flour in a skillet or tin dish, place it on stove or in very hot oven. After it begins to color, stir until browned all through. Cool and place in glass can for convenient use.

Cotton Fabrics in New Weaves

Displays of spring dress goods in the shops are enriched by many beautiful and novel cotton fabrics that are a revelation in the art of weaving cotton. They include canvas cloths and basket weaves that promise something of a revolution in apparel for warm weather. There are the smart awning stripes in white with all colors and white with black, in which colorings and the arrangement of stripes are both new. They are to be used for separate skirts to be worn with coats of a plain color. Basket weaves are most attractive in black and white, but are shown in many designs adapted to skirts and suits. Cottons, in fact, are usurping the place of woolens and silks by the force of the beauty and practicability of the new weaves.

Some of the familiar cotton materials, like cretonne, in light weights are woven with reference to their use in dresses and suits. In suits, plain, coarse linens or cottons are used with them, made into coats finished with collars, cuffs, belts, pockets and other details of finishing, made of cretonne like that in the skirt. Or this is reversed and the plain skirt is worn with a cretonne coat. Beach suits in which hats and bags and pillows are made of these fabrics could hardly be more pleasing than they are.

All of this promises a summer of colorful clothes. These cotton materials are moderate in price and there are no others smarter in design. Best of all, they are washable.

One of the new canvass cloths is shown in an afternoon gown, pictured above. It is a one-piece model with full plain skirt and surplice waist. The edges of the bodice and bottom of the skirt are finished with cord covered with the canvass. The sleeves are of cream-colored net flouncing, and the embroidered edge forme the deep cuff that extends over the hand. A rosette, which fastens the surplice, is made of the canvas also.

This gown could hardly be simpler. The fluffiness which is appropriate to sheer fabrics is out of place in these heavier weaves, and in large patterns of gay flowers the simpler the design, the better.

Women Who Lead the Way

Miss Clare Greacon—Specialist of Naval Legal Lore.

(By Marie Dille)

Miss Clare Greacon has distinguished herself in many branches of legal work since being admitted to the office of the Controller of the Treasury at Washington. She has so far proved herself an individual among the group of law clerks of which she is one that she has been voted the coming woman lawyer of the United States by the Controller, W. W. Warwick, under whose immediate supervision she is.

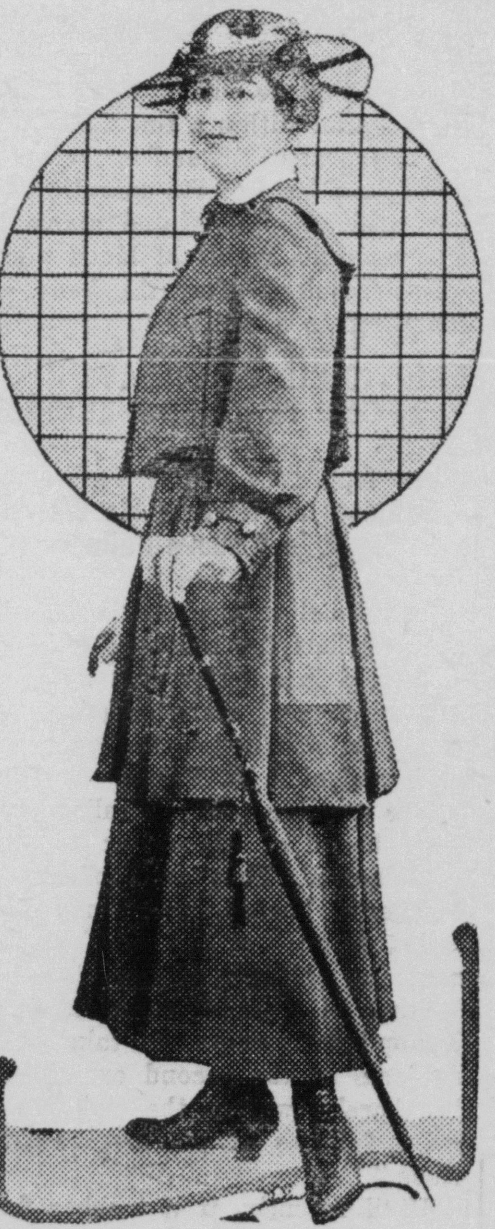
The task of the law clerks in the office of the Controller is to make sure of the law governing all claims for public moneys. A decision coming from the Controller as to the expenditure of a sum or the settlement of a claim for money is final. As this includes all departments of government expense there are many different legal phases and each clerk has a varied experience. Those who have sufficient ability along any particular line specialize in a department and matters concerning that phase are referred to them.

The naval angle, in which Miss Greacon is a specialist, is considered one of the most tangled and complicated of the many submitted to the Controller. The scope of sums in this department vary from a few cents, which may perhaps represent a porter's tip, to the financing of the building of the Panama Canal. This department is most readily influenced by new legislation and the corps of law clerks must constantly be alert to the meaning of every new law; and the interpretation of the will of Congress is left to the judgment of the clerk to a very marked degree.

Miss Clare Greacon began her legal career in Kalkaska, Mich., where as almost a child she took a course in court stenography. When her legal age permitted she took the civil service examination. Her average was so high as to give her a permanent position in the Treasury Department, where difficult legal difficulties arose. She absorbed much valuable legal lore during the years in which she was engaged in this work and resolved to become a full-fledged lawyer.

She took a course in law and followed it with a course in diplomacy at the George Washington University. For four years she sacrificed her social life by spending her evenings in the study of political economy, sociology, political history, finance and international relations. She passed the bar in the District of Columbia far ahead of her competitors. She continued her work in stenography during her college course and was frequently given a legal case to handle. The result was that immediately after her graduation she was ready to take the examination for the first vacancy as law clerk in the Treasury Department. she was given a position in the Controller's department, where she has since won an honored place.

Suits of Two Materials



Fashion regards the combination of two materials in both gowns and suits with great favor this spring. The charming suit shown here is of dark blue taffeta and gaberdine, and is made with one of the new short coats having a cape collar.

There are none more smart or practical among the new spring suits than those of cotton corduroy. One of them is shown above with plain skirt and graceful belted coat on which decorative buttons are used to great advantage.

Activity in Art Club.

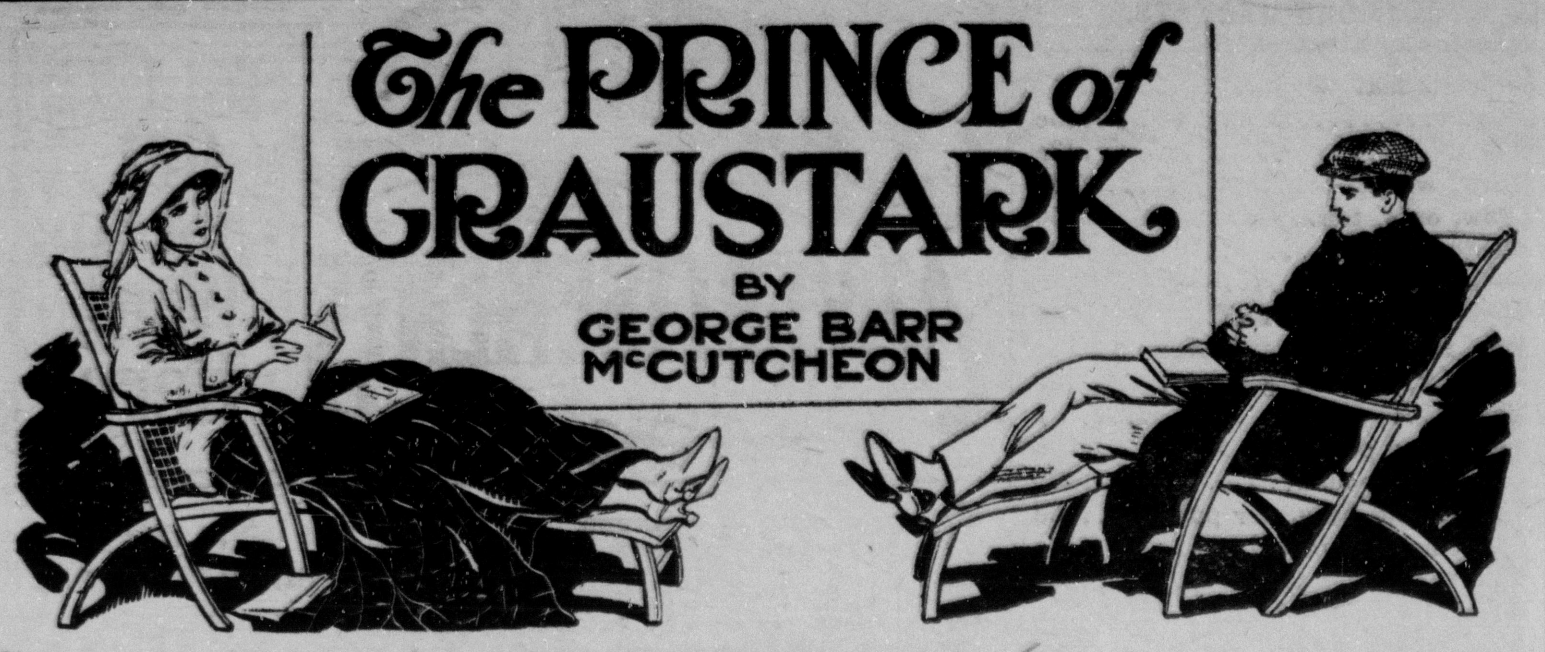
Members of the Seymour Art League are beginning to plan for the annual exhibit which is held at the high school building during the commencement week and immediately following. The committee in charge of the exhibit hopes to make the display this spring the largest that has ever been shown in this city.

The members of the Club defray the expenses of the exhibit and no admission is charged to citizens who are interested in inspecting the pictures of famous artists shown here. Before the exhibit can be arranged for, however, it will be necessary to collect the annual dues from the members and the finance committee will begin this work in the near future. A large number of new members have joined the League since last Spring and with the co-operation that is indicated the coming display will be the most successful in the history of the local League.

Seasonable, Anyway.

In the March Woman's Home Companion is a recipe for St. Patrick's Day that the Saint himself, and even the snakes might enjoy.

"Irish Iceberg: Put four cupfuls of water and two cupfuls of sugar in saucepan, bring to the boiling point and let boil twenty minutes. Cool, add three-fourths cupful of lemon juice. Color green and strain. Freeze, using three parts of finely crushed ice to one part of rock salt. Serve in tall dessert glasses and pour over each portion one teaspoonful of creme de menthe. Sprinkle with chopped nuts, using Jordan almonds, English walnuts, and pecans in equal proportions."



The PRINCE of GRAUSTARK

BY GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Copyright, 1914, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

PROLOGUE.

After a lapse of a very few years, lo, here is a story about a Prince of Graustark who is none other than the son of Princess Yetive, the heroine of "Graustark." He is a full grown man, very much full grown, and very much of a man. Moreover, there is a beautiful girl in the offing, whose relation to Beverly of Graustark is that of daughter to mother; also there is a very shrewd, forceful, powerful American multimillionaire with a brilliant and lovely daughter. Now, given these ingredients, so to speak, and the reader may trust McCutcheon to mix them up to give them just the right flavor, to cook them to just the right turn and to serve a story piping hot, which will give as many million hours of thorough enjoyment as "Graustark" and "Beverly of Graustark" did in their time.

CHAPTER I.

Matrimony Is Discussed.

"MY dear," said Mr. Blithers, with decision, "you can't tell me."

"I know I can't," said his wife, quite as positively. She knew when she could tell him a thing and when she couldn't.

It was quite impossible to impart information to Mr. Blithers when he had the tips of two resolute fingers embedded in his ears. Mrs. Blithers had lived with her husband, more or less, for twenty-five years, and she knew him like a book. He was a forceful person who would have his own way, even though he had to put his fingers in his ears to get it. Moreover, when he called her "my dear" instead of the customary Lou it was a sign of supreme obstinacy on his part and could not by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as an indication of placid affection. He always said "my dear" at the top of his voice and with a great deal of irascibility.

Mr. William W. Blithers was a self made man who had begun his career by shouting lustily at a team of mules in a railway construction camp. Other drivers had tried to improve on his vocabulary, but even the mules were able to appreciate the futility of such an ambition, and later on, when he came to own two or three railroads, to say nothing of a few mines and a steam yacht, his ability to drive men was even more noteworthy than his power over the jackasses had been.

Mr. and Mrs. Blithers had been discussing royalty. Up to the previous week they had restricted themselves to the nobility, but as an event of unexampled importance had transpired in the interim they now felt that it would be the rankest stupidity to consider any one short of a prince royal in picking out a suitable husband—or, more properly speaking, consort—for their only daughter, Maud Applegate Blithers, aged twenty.

Mrs. Blithers long ago had convinced her husband that no ordinary human being of the male persuasion was worthy of their daughter's hand and had set her heart on having nothing meaner than a duke on the family roll—Blithers alluded to it for awhile as the payroll—with the choice lying between England and Italy.

But now, just as they were on the point of accepting in lieu of a duke an exceptionally promising count, the aforesaid event conspired to completely upset all of their plans—or notions, so to speak. It was nothing less than the arrival in America of an eligible prince of the royal blood, a ruling prince at that. As a matter of fact, he had not only arrived in America, but upon the vast estate adjoining their own in the Catskills.

Peculiarly promising to their hopes was the indisputable fact that the prince's mother had married an American, thereby establishing a precedent behind which no constitutional obstacle could thrive, and had lived very happily with the gentleman in spite of the critics.

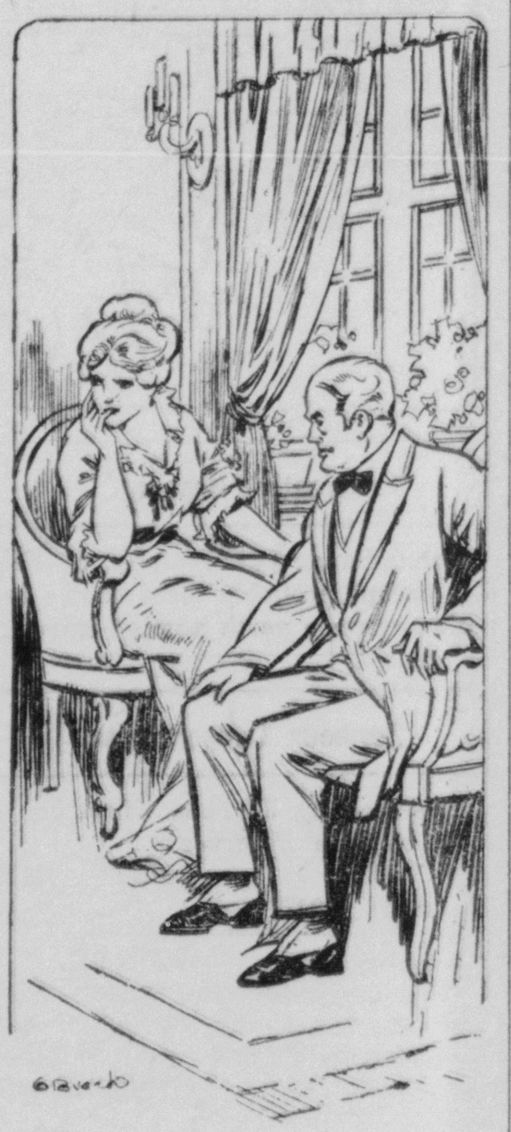
It appears that the prince after leisurely crossing the continent on his way around the world had come to the Truxton Kings for a long promised and much desired visit, the duration of which depended to some extent on his own inclinations and not a little on the outcome of the war talk that affected two great European nations—Russia and Austria. Mr. Blithers was in a position to know that the little principality over which the young man reigned was bound to be drawn into the cataclysm not as a belligerent or an ally, but in the matter of a loan that inconveniently expired within the year and which would hardly be renewed by Russia with the prospect of vast expenditures of war threatening her treasury. The loan undoubtedly would be called, and Graustark was not in a position to pay out of her own slender resources, two years of famine having fallen upon the people at a time when prosperity was most to be desired.

It was the private opinion of Mr. Blithers that the young prince and the trusted agents who accompanied him on his journey were in the United States solely for the purpose of arranging a loan through sources that could only be reached by personal appeal.

But all this is beside the question. The young Prince of Graustark was enjoying American hospitality, and no matter what he owed to Russia, America owed to him its most punctillious consideration.

The main point is that the prince was now rusticating within what you might call a stone's throw of the capacious and lordly country residence of Mr. Blithers; moreover, he was an uncommonly attractive chap, with a laugh that was so charged with heartiness that it didn't seem possible that he could have a drop of royal blood in his vigorous young body. And the perfectly ridiculous part of the whole situation was that Mr. and Mrs. King lived in a modest, vine covered little house that could have been lost in the servants' quarters at Blitherwood. Especially aggravating, too, was the Kings' attitude. They were really nobodies, so to speak, and yet they blithely called their royal guest "Bobby" and allowed him to fetch and carry for their women folk quite as if he were an ordinary whippersnapper up from the city to spend the week end.

The remark with which Mr. Blithers introduces this chapter was in response to an oft repeated declaration made by his wife. Mrs. Blithers merely had stated—but over and over again—that money couldn't buy everything in the world, referring directly to social eminence and indirectly to their secret ambition to capture a prince of the royal blood for their daughter Maud. She had prefaced this opinion, however, with the exceedingly irritating insinuation that Mr. Blithers was not in his right mind when he proposed inviting the prince to spend a few weeks at Blitherwood, provided the young man could cut short his visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. King, who, he had asseverated, were in no position to entertain royalty as royalty was in the habit of being entertained.



"You say you don't want Count What's-His-Name."

Long experience had taught Mr. Blithers to read the lip and eye language with some degree of certainty, so by watching his wife's indignant face closely he was able to tell when she was succumbing to reason. He was a burly, domineering person who reasoned for every one within range of his voice, and it was only when his wife became coldly sarcastic that he closed his ears and boomed his opinions into her very teeth, so to say, joyfully overwhelming her with facts which it were futile for her to attempt to deny. He was aware quite as much so as if he had heard the words that she was now saying:

"Well, there is absolutely no use arguing with you, Will. Have it your way if it pleases you."

Eying her with some uneasiness, he cautiously inserted his thumbs in the armholes of his brocaded waistcoat and proclaimed:

"As I said before, Lou, there isn't a foreign nobleman, from the emperor down, who is above grabbing a few million dollars. They're all hard up."

"We were speaking of Prince Robin," remarked his wife, with a slight shudder. Mrs. Blithers came of better stock than her husband. His gaucheries frequently set her teeth on edge. She was born in Providence and sometimes mentioned the occurrence when particularly desirous of squelching him, not unkindly perhaps, but by way of making him realize that their daughter had good blood in her veins. Mr. Blithers had heard in a roundabout way that he first saw the light of day in Jersey City, although after he became famous Newark claimed him. He did not bother about the matter.

"Well, he's like all the rest of them," said he after a moment of indecision. Something told him that he really ought to refrain from talking about the cost of things, even in the bosom of his family. He had heard that only vulgarians speak of their possessions. "Now, there's no reason in the world why we shouldn't consider his offer. He"—

"Offer?" she cried, aghast. "He has made no offer, Will. He doesn't even know that Maud is in existence. How can you say such a thing?"

"I was merely looking ahead, that's all. My motto is 'Look ahead.' You know it as well as I do. Where would I be today if I hadn't looked ahead and seen what was going to happen before the other fellow had his eyes open? Will you tell me that? Where, I say? What's more, where would I be now if I hadn't looked ahead and seen what a marriage with the daughter of Judge Morton would mean to me in the long run?" He felt that he had uttered a very pretty and convincing compliment. "I never made a bad bargain in my life, Lou, and it wasn't guesswork when I married you. You, my dear old girl, you were the solid foundation on which I"—

"I know," she said wearily. "You've said it a thousand times—'the foundation on which I built my temple of posterity'—yes, I know, Will. But I am still unalterably opposed to making ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of Mr. and Mrs. King."

"Ridiculous? I don't understand you?"

"Well, you will after you think it over," she said quietly, and he scowled in positive perplexity.

"Don't you think he'd be a good match for Maud?" he asked, after many minutes. He felt that he had thought it over.

"Are you thinking of kidnaping him, Will?" she demanded.

"Certainly not! But all you've got to do is to say that he's the man for Maud and I'll—I'll do the rest. That's the kind of a man I am, Lou. You say you don't want Count What's-His-Name—that is, you don't want him as much as you did—and you do say that it would be the grandest thing in the world if Maud could be the Princess of Grosstick"—

"Graustark, Will."

"That's what I said. Well, if you want her to be the Princess of THAT I'll see that she is, provided this fellow is a gentleman and worthy of her. The only prince I ever knew was a rascal, and I'm going to be careful about this one. You remember that measly"—

"There is no question about Prince Robin," said she sharply.

"I suppose the only question is, How much will he want?"

"You mean—settlement?"

"Sure."

"Have you no romance in your soul, William Blithers?"

"I never believed in fairy stories," said he grimly. "And, what's more, I don't take any stock in cheap novels in which American heroes go about marrying into royal families and all that sort of rot. It isn't done, Lou. If you want to marry into a royal family you've got to put up the coin."

"Prince Robin's mother, the poor Princess Yetive, married an American for love, let me remind you."

"Umph! Where is this Groostock, anyway."

"'Somewhere east of the setting sun,' she quoted. "You must learn how to pronounce it."

"I never was good at foreign languages. By the way, where is Maud this afternoon?"

"Motoring."

He waited for additional information. It was not vouchsafed, so he demanded somewhat fearfully:

"Who with?"

"Young Scoville."

He scowled. "He's a loafer, Lou. No good in the world. I don't like the way you let"—

"He is of a very good family, my dear. I"—

"Is he—er—in love with her?"

"Certainly. Why not? Isn't every one she meets in love with her?"

"I—I suppose so," he admitted sheepishly. His face brightened. "And there's no reason why this prince shouldn't fall heels over head, is there? Well, there you are! That will make a difference in the settlement, believe me, a difference of a couple of millions at least if"—

She arose abruptly. "You are positively disgusting, Will. Can't you think of anything but"—

"Say, ain't that Maudie coming up the drive now? Sure it is! By gracious, did you ever see anything to beat her? She's got 'em all beat a mile when it comes to looks and style and— Oh, by the way," lowering his voice to a hoarse, confidential whisper, "I wouldn't say anything to her about the marriage just yet if I were you. I want to look him over first."

Prince Robin of Graustark was as good looking a chap as one would see in a week's journey. Little would one suspect him of being the descendant of a long and distinguished line of princes save for the unmistakable though indefinable something in his eye that exacted rather than invited the homage of his fellow man. His laugh was a free and merry one, his spirits as effervescent as wine, his manner blithe and boyish, yet beneath all this fair and guileless exposition of carelessness lay the sober integrity of caste.

His mother, the beautiful, gracious and lamented Princess Yetive, set all royal circles by the ears when she married the American, Lorry, back in the nineties. A special act of the ministry had legalized this union, and the son of the American was not deprived of his right to succeed to the throne which his forbears had occupied for centuries. From his mother he had inherited the right of kings, from his father the spirit of freedom; from his mother the power of majesty, from his father the power to see beyond that majesty. When little more than a babe in arms he was orphaned, and the affairs of state fell upon the shoulders of three loyal and devoted men who served as regents until he became of age.

He was seven when the great revolt headed by Count Marlanx came so near to overthrowing the government, and he behaved like the prince that he was. It was during those perilous times that he came to know the gallant Truxton King, in whose home he was now a happy guest. But before Truxton King he knew the lovely girl who became the wife of that devoted adventurer and who, to him, was always to be "Aunt Loraine."

As a very small boy he had paid two visits to the home land of his father, but after the death of his parents his valuable little person was guarded so jealously by his subjects that not once had he set foot beyond the borders of Graustark, except on two widely separated occasions of great pomp and ceremony at the courts of Vienna and St. Petersburg, and a secret journey to London when he was seventeen. (It appears that he was determined to see a great football match.) On each of these occasions he was attended by watchful members of the cabinet and certain military units in the now far from insignificant standing army. As a matter of fact, he witnessed the football match from the ordinary stands, surrounded by thousands of unsuspecting Britons, but carefully wedged in between two generals of his own army and flanked by a minister of police, a minister of the treasury and a minister of war, all of whom were excessively bored by the contest and more or less appalled by his unregal enthusiasm. He had insisted on going to the match incog, to enjoy it for all it was worth to the real spectators—those who sit or stand where the compression is not unlike that applied to a box of sardines.

The regency expired when he was twenty years of age, and he became ruler in fact of himself as well as of the half million subjects who had waited patiently for the great day that was to see him crowned and glorified. He was their prince, and they loved him well.

Mr. Blithers was very close to the truth when he said (to himself, if you remember) that the financial situation in the far off principality was not all that could be desired. It is true that Graustark was in Russia's debt to the extent of some 20,000,000 gavvos—about $30,000,000, in other words—and that the day of reckoning was very near at hand. The loan was for a period of twelve years and had been arranged contrary to the advice of John Tullis, an American financier, who long had been interested in the welfare of the principality through friendship for the lamented prince consort, Lorry. He had been farsighted enough to realize that Russia would prove a hard creditor, even though she may have been sincere in her protestations of friendship for the modest borrower.

A stubborn element in the cabinet overcame his opposition, however, and the debt was contracted, taxation increased by popular vote and a period of governmental thriftiness inaugurated. Railroads, highways, bridges and aqueducts were built, owned and controlled by the state, and the city of Edelweiss rebuilt after the devastation created during the revolt of Count Marlanx and his minions. There seemed to be some prospect of vindication for the ministry, and Tullis, who lived in Edelweiss, was fair minded enough to admit that their action appeared to have been for the best. The people had prospered, and taxes were paid in full and without complaint. The reserve fund grew steadily and surely, and there was every prospect that when the huge debt came due it would be paid in cash. But on the very crest of their prosperity came adversity. For two years the crops failed, and a pestilence swept through the herds. There was not so much as a penny left over for the so called sinking fund.

Mr. Went-And-Cut-It—Here's Mr. 'Gets-It'

The New Plan Corn Cure That's as Sure as the Rising Sun.

"Glad to meat you!" says the razor to the corn. "I'll bleed for you!" says the corn to the razor. Razors and corns love each other. Corns love to be cut, picked, gouged, salved, plastered and jerked out,—they grow faster. Mr. and Mrs. Went-and-Cut-It realize it now,—they use "Gets-It" instead—it's the wonderful, simple corn-cure that never fails. Stops pain. You apply it in 2 seconds, it dries at once, the corn is doomed. Nothing to stick to the stocking or press on the corn. It means good-night to plasters, salves, diggers, razors and toe-bundling. You can wear smaller shoes. Your corns will come right off, "clean as a whistle." Never inflames healthy flesh. The world's biggest selling corn cure.

"Gets-It" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Seymour and recommended as the world's best corn remedy, by C. E. Loertz and H. H. Carter.

WILL HAVE A LONG SMOKE.

Will of Tobacconist Gives Doctor 4,000 Cigars From His Stock.

White Plains, N. Y.—Dr. Leo F. Hugle of New Rochelle will smoke for a long time at the expense of John Christian Alton, who recently died.

The will of Alton, a tobacconist, at one time a member of the Tenth army corps in Germany, was filed in this city. In it he makes a cash bequest of $130 to the physician and adds that he be permitted to pick the choicest 4,000 cigars in his stock. If the doctor consumes an average of ten a day he will be smoking at least thirteen months after Alton's death.

Another bequest was of $1,000 to be set aside by the New Rochelle Trust company for wounded members of the corps of which he was a member. The trust company has the option of using the money now or at the end of the war, the stipulation being that it be spent through the Red Cross of Germany.

Alton left several thousand dollars to charity, the New Rochelle Hospital association coming in for $1,000.

DOG PAYS HIS DEBT.

Warned His Rescuer From Clutches of a Fire In the House.

Lenox, Ia.—Recently when a dog catcher was leading Sport, a homeless black and tan dog, to his death, W. F. Steinkamp, a merchant here, intervened. He paid the tax on Sport and installed the erstwhile orphan dog as a pet of the Steinkamp household.

Shortly afterward Sport paid the debt. During the night the Steinkamp home caught fire, and the flames spread rapidly. A short time after midnight Mr. Steinkamp was awakened by Sport's frantic barking. He shouted to the dog to be quiet, but Sport would not be stilled. Then Mr. Steinkamp arose to see what was wrong.

As he opened his bedroom door a burst of flames and smoke met him. He had scarcely time to save himself and his three small children before the walls of the house crashed in.

Lenox residents are planning to buy Sport a collar with a real hero medal attached.

CINDERS KEEP THEM WARM.

Tramps Take Advantage of Work Being Conducted by Penn Road.

Beaver Falls, Pa.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has been making a fill of the Beaver river between New Brighton and Rochester with the intention of changing its main line between the two points to eliminate a long curve. The fill requires hundreds of carloads of cinders, which are loaded into the cars while red hot. When unloaded they retain the heat for days.

This has made the place a winter resort for hoboes. At all hours the entire embankment, a mile or more in length, swarms with a heterogeneous crowd of old and young men, who eat, drink, make merry and sleep.

On the hot cinders the tramps make coffee and cook the fruits of foraging parties. When sleepy they scoop out a bed in the warm ashes and after carefully removing the clinkers burrow down in the yielding mass and sleep in comparative comfort on the coldest nights, with only their heads visible.

DELAY FUNERAL FOR COFFIN.

Had to Select Lumber From Farm For Woman's Interment.

St. Louis.—The funeral of Mrs. Anton Weineke of Edwardsville, Ill., was delayed until a coffin could be made from a walnut tree on her "home place."

Mrs. Weineke and her husband, three years ago, picked out the walnut tree on their farm from which to have their coffins made. It was sawed into boards, which were permitted to season until last June, when Weineke took the lumber to a planing mill and ordered it made into coffins. Weineke was then eighty years old, and his wife was seventy-seven.

The work of making the caskets was put off. When Mrs. Weineke died, rather unexpectedly, orders were given to rush one of the coffins to completion.

Mrs. Weineke was the daughter of Anton Louis, a pioneer St. Louis druggist.

DIAZ GIVES VILLA SUPPORT

Indignation Prevails Among Mexicans Over Invasion by U. S.

Galveston, Tex., March 16.—Dispatches received here from Mexico City via Vera Cruz, declare that Zapata and Felix Diaz are sending soldiers from southern Mexico to Villa's aid. Advices are that 1,000 of Zapatas force have left the country south of Mexico City and are destroying property and life as they go.

Efforts are being made by Carranza to intercept the movement. Tuxam advices declare that Diaz is endeavoring to incite the peons, and great indignation prevails among Mexicans over the action of the United States.

Three hundred Carranza soldiers, well armed and equipped, are marching toward the Rio Grande and will attempt an invasion of Texas, according to dispatches reaching here from Marfa and Mercedes. These soldiers murdered their commander, Colonel Rojas, at Ojinaga when he attempted to prevent their march to the Texas border. Messages from the interior of Mexico say other Carranza soldiers are joining the expedition.

ONE HUNDRED LEADING HOOSIERS 1816-1916

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission.)

Sarah T. Bolton (17)

The first, and for many years the only literary woman this side of the Allegheny mountains was Sarah T. Bolton. She has rightly been called "The First Singer in a New Land." When only four years of age she, with her parents moved from Kentucky and settled in Madison, Indiana. Here she grew into womanhood, and at an early age married Nathaniel Bolton, an editor. In 1832 he established the Indianapolis Gazette, the pioneer newspaper of this city, and his young bride accompanied him here on horseback. Suffering financial reverses in the panic of 1837, the young couple were reduced to utter want. Mrs. Bolton states that she herself was forced to make their garments from the wool off the sheeps' back. She assisted her husband in the office, learning typesetting, and adds that "the first rollers ever made in Indianapolis were cast in my kitchen."

Mrs. Sarah Ketchem Dead.

Mrs. Sarah Ketchem, widow of the late Basil Ketchem, died Wednesday afternoon at her home in Brownstown. She was ill for several days with an attack of the grip and pneumonia developed causing her death. She was sixty-eight years old and had been a resident at Brownstown for a number of years. One daughter survives. The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Christian church, conducted by Rev. T. J. Due. Burial at Brownstown cemetery.

Miss Pearl Schobert Dead.

Word was received here today announcing the death of Miss Pearl Schobert at her home in Cincinnati, Wednesday afternoon following an illness of tuberculosis. Miss Schobert visited here last summer for several weeks and won many friends. Mrs. Charles Schobert and Mrs. A. L. White will go to Cincinnati Friday to attend the funeral, which will be held at the residence Friday afternoon.

James Boling Dead.

James Boling, one of the oldest farmers in Washington county, died Wednesday evening, following an illness with complication of diseases. He was 70 years old and is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Henry Prince, of Brownstown. The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at White's church.

GRAND ADMIRAL MAY BE DISPLEASED WITH ORDER

Semi-Official Dispatch Says This May Have Been Cause of His Recent Resignation.

By United Press.

Berlin, March 16—"In some quarters it is believed the resignation of Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz in connected with the kaiser's decision not to extend submarine warfare beyond the limits announced to neutrals in the recent memorandum and not to neutral ships," said a semi-official news agency today.
